ADAMHS Board of Cuyahoga County Supports National Responsible Gaming Education Week

CUYAHOGA COUNTY, OHIO – The Alcohol, Drug Addiction and Mental Health Services (ADAMHS) Board of Cuyahoga County supports the American Gaming Association (AGA) and the National Center for Responsible Gaming in recognizing the 15th Annual Responsible Gaming Education Week (RGEW), July 30 through August 5, 2012.

“Now that the Horseshoe Casino Cleveland is thriving, we want the community to know that there is a responsible way to enjoy the casino and that there is help for people who may be addicted to gambling,” stated William M. Denihan, CEO of the ADAMHS Board of Cuyahoga County.

Mr. Denihan is pleased to know that that the Horseshoe Casino Cleveland and casinos around the country are educating their employees and patrons about responsible gaming and serving as a resource for people who may be addicted. Throughout the week, individual casinos are hosting activities to educate employees and patrons on responsible gaming. Anyone seeking information on the Horseshoe’s responsible gaming policies can view a video and read more on the Horseshoe Casino Cleveland’s Web site, www.horseshoecleveland.com and clicking on the Responsible Gaming link.

The ADAMHS Board is also promoting a new research-based guidebook developed by NCRG for human resources and employee assistance professionals that was released this week. The guidebook answers frequently asked questions about gambling disorders and responsible gaming and serves as a useful resource for employees looking for more information. The new resource is available for download at www.ncrg.org/gamblingandhealth.

Mr. Denihan also reminds, “If you or someone you know might have a gambling problem, call the Ohio Problem Gambling Helpline at 1-800-589-9966.”
